As we present our sixth annual “Juvenile Justice Report Card,” the Department of Juvenile Justice (DJJ) and the state of South Carolina, like many other states, continue to face an economic crisis. The crisis has led to the elimination of many of DJJ’s most vital and successful programs, putting much of the agency’s progress in peril because of deep budget reductions.
However, you will see from this Report Card that public safety, prevention, rehabilitation, the education of troubled youth, and services to victims are among our top priorities.

While DJJ staff, volunteers, and many generous private donors have valiantly helped the agency keep some of its best programs and initiatives in place, the consequences of losing $21 million -- over 25% of our budget – have greatly impacted not only programs, but also staff, and most importantly, the children and citizens of South Carolina whom we serve.

The budget crisis has forced DJJ to close every agency-run group home in the state, to reduce our staff by over 300 employees, completely cut funding for our Teen After-school Centers (TASC’s), and to eliminate all of our community job training programs, our employability program, and our Gang Reduction Intervention Program (GRIP). These cuts have been particularly hard on our prevention efforts and programs which help reduce victimization and youth crime in the long-term. So, while the direct effect of these cuts may not be felt immediately, it is my concern that they will have an ultimate negative impact which we have yet to see. We are fortunate to have maintained the successful Intensive Supervision Officer (ISO) program, which provides around the clock monitoring of youth on probation.

During this time of economic crisis, I want to commend DJJ staff and those who support the rehabilitation of troubled children for their efforts to help ease some of the ill effects of this crisis and to help keep the agency’s performance at its highest level. We are especially grateful for non-profit organizations such as “Friends of Juvenile Justice” (FJJ), VECTOR Foundation, and Youth Hope Foundation; which collaborate to bring in private partnerships and funding to DJJ.

We are proud to say that the content of this report card reflects the amazing job DJJ staff and volunteers are doing against increasingly tough odds. DJJ harbors the hope that our state can recover from this crisis and that we can soon rebuild some of what we have lost. We ask that you take the time to study this Report Card and to join efforts to help make communities safer, to better satisfy victims of crime, and to rehabilitate young offenders.

Bill Byars
Director, South Carolina
Department of Juvenile Justice
Juveniles usually enter the juvenile justice system in South Carolina when they are taken into custody by law enforcement or when a Solicitor or a school refers them to DJJ. At this stage, personnel at a DJJ county office usually interview the juvenile. DJJ has offices in 43 of South Carolina’s 46 counties. Law enforcement also may elect to send the juvenile to a South Carolina juvenile detention center, pending a hearing.

After county office or detention center personnel have interviewed a juvenile, DJJ makes recommendations to the Solicitor’s office regarding the case. The Solicitor has a number of options available when deciding how to pursue a case. A Solicitor may choose to divert a juvenile to a community program (such as a drug court or juvenile arbitration program) or require the juvenile to make restitution for the offense. Solicitors also may choose to proceed with prosecution or to dismiss a case entirely.

If the Solicitor chooses to prosecute, the next stage of the process involves the family court. A family court judge determines the guilt or innocence of the juvenile and sentences those juveniles adjudicated delinquent (found guilty). Often a judge will request a DJJ evaluation of the juvenile before making a final ruling, or prior to commitment. This involves psychological, social, and educational evaluations conducted either in the community or at one of DJJ’s three regional evaluation centers. The resulting comprehensive evaluation helps the judge decide how to proceed in the best interests of the juvenile, victim, and community.
A family court judge may find the juvenile is not delinquent (not guilty). After a finding of delinquency, the judge has several sentencing options. Chief among these is probation, which maintains the juvenile in the community under DJJ supervision. The judge may also commit the juvenile to DJJ custody by imposing a determinate (fixed amount of time) or indeterminate sentence. An indeterminate sentence allows the youth to be confined up to the age of 21.

Upon indeterminate commitment, a juvenile will be given a time range or “guideline,” determined by the state Board of Juvenile Parole (for all felonies and select misdemeanors) or DJJ’s own release authority (for most misdemeanors and all status offenses). This range is based on the severity of the juvenile’s offense and his history of previous offenses. These guidelines can run anywhere from 1-3 months up to 36-54 months. The Board and DJJ use these guidelines – along with an evaluation of the juvenile’s behavior and progress – to determine the length of incarceration.

Juveniles may remain incarcerated beyond their guideline (up to their 21st birthday). They may also be paroled prior to their minimum guideline for exceptional behavior and progress.

Juveniles may be granted conditional or unconditional releases. A conditional release might involve requiring the juvenile to complete a local aftercare program or program at a wilderness camp or group home. A conditional release also involves a period of parole supervision. DJJ county officers supervise juveniles on parole, much as they supervise juveniles on probation.

CASE REFERALS TO DJJ: In FY 2008-09, 23,111 cases were referred to DJJ, a 20% drop in the last six years. Data collected by DJJ and Juvenile Arbitration Programs (early intervention) at the time offenders exited the juvenile justice system revealed that 67 percent of the population was male, 58 percent was African-American, and the average age was 16 years old.

OFFENDERS DIVERTED BY JUVENILE ARBITRATION PROGRAMS: Juvenile Arbitration is a program operated in all 16 judicial circuits in South Carolina to divert first-time, non-violent juvenile offenders from the court. In the program, trained citizen volunteers work with offenders/parents, victims, and law enforcement to determine appropriate sanctions.

DAILY POPULATION AT DJJ: At the close of Fiscal Year 2008-09, a daily population of 691 juveniles was held in hardware-secure facilities at DJJ. Staff secure community placements have shown a drastic drop in the last year due to the closure of all DJJ group homes and some wilderness camps due to recent budget cuts. This represents nearly a 15 percent drop in the total population over a three-year period.

JUVENILE PROBATION & PAROLE
CASELOADS IN COMMUNITIES: The supervision of offenders in their communities enhances community safety. DJJ’s community staff supervised 4,973 juvenile offenders both on probation or parole at the close of Fiscal Year 2008-2009. Eighty-five percent of juveniles on probation or parole, or in Juvenile Arbitration Programs did not re-offend while under supervision.

TEEN AFTER SCHOOL CENTERS (TASC):
TASCs are after-school programs that provided mentoring, tutoring, and supervised recreation in the critical after-school hours. Prior to the elimination of the program in November 2008, over 31 percent of TASC students improved school performance, and a similar percentage improved attendance. DJJ hopes to fully restore this program in the future.

SCDJJ SCHOOL DISTRICT GRADUATION RATE: DJJ operates its own school district for incarcerated offenders, currently with high school and middle school programs accredited by the South Carolina Department of Education. For the sixth year, DJJ’s school district received the “Palmetto Gold” award.

WORK SERVICE: Offenders also are expected to perform work service to repay their community for the harm they caused. In 8,757 cases closed during FY 2008-09, 105,962 hours of community work service were ordered. The number of work service hours completed was 91,129, which is 86 percent of the work service ordered.

MEASURING SYSTEM ACCOUNTABILITY:
The justice system has a responsibility to serve crime victims. Over the past 5 years, crime victims across South Carolina were surveyed to determine their level of satisfaction with the juvenile justice system. Victims were asked to rate their overall experience with the juvenile justice system. On a rating scale with 1 being most negative to 5 being most positive, nearly 70% percent of victims surveyed rated their satisfaction at a five.
Drug & Alcohol Abuse Offenders Testing Negative

Number Tested: 1,597
Percent Tested Negative: 77%

RESISTANCE TO DRUG & ALCOHOL USE:
In 8,757 cases closed during FY 2008-09, 18 percent of youth were tested while under supervision in the community. Of those youth tested, a negative result occurred in 77 percent of cases. Marijuana was involved in 89 percent of all positive tests.

SCHOOL PARTICIPATION: During FY 2008-09, 85 percent of the 8,757 youth completing court orders or Juvenile Arbitration Program sanctions were enrolled in school, an alternative education program, or vocational training. Of the 1,288 youth not involved in an alternative educational or vocational program, and who were age-eligible (16 years old) to work, 24 were employed.

EMPLOYABILITY TRAINING: Due to budget cuts, most DJJ employability training was eliminated in November 2008. Prior to elimination, the program served 684 youth a year in the community. The program now only exists in some secure facilities where 36 youth completed the program during Fiscal Year 2008-09. Thirty-two of those youth earned “WorkKeys” accreditation, a state program designed to evaluate students’ workplace skills.

CITIZEN PARTICIPATION/COMMUNITY COMPETENCY: During FY 2008-09, 1,791 volunteers stepped forward to assist DJJ and the Solicitors’ Arbitration Programs as mentors, arbitrators, tutors, auxiliary probation officers, in other capacities in the community, and in DJJ facilities. Citizen volunteers helped to make our communities safer by contributing approximately 34,257 hours of services. DJJ is served by more volunteers each year than permanent staff.

VIOLENT & SERIOUS JUVENILE CASES:
Nationally and in South Carolina, juvenile violent crime peaked in the mid-1990’s. Since then, violent and serious juvenile crime in South Carolina has decreased by 31 percent. The number of cases includes juveniles referred more than once during the fiscal year.

TRENDS IN JUVENILE JUSTICE: One indicator of trends in South Carolina’s juvenile justice system is the number of offenders committed into the custody of DJJ. Table A compares the number of offenders sentenced to DJJ custody over the past five years.

Another indicator of trends is the number of juveniles being held in DJJ’s Detention Center pending court action. Juveniles detained by the family court and law enforcement agencies and determined to be high-risk offenders are held in detention centers. DJJ’s Detention Center has had a drop in the daily population from its peak in 2005-2006. This drop correlated with detention reform efforts implemented by DJJ with the assistance of the University of South Carolina’s Children’s Law Center. However, detention rates still exceed the Center’s design capacity of 72 beds.

LAW-ABIDING BEHAVIOR: Recidivism is the rate at which juveniles are charged with a new offense. Of the 8,757 cases closed during FY 2008-09, 85 percent of offenders on probation or parole, or in Juvenile Arbitration Programs did not re-offend while under supervision.

Building Community Partnerships

• Clemson University & Columbia College – DJJ partnered with Clemson University and Columbia College to host the 4th annual Girls’ Symposium. The symposium focused on gender responsive issues related to female offenders.

• Rotary International – In 2006, DJJ joined with the Rotary Club of Lake Murray-Irmo to charter an Interact Club at DJJ. This year, DJJ’s Interact Club won the Grand Prize in Rotary International’s video contest by producing the three-minute video, “What Interact Means to Me.”

• United Way of the Midlands & Friends of Juvenile Justice (FJJ) – DJJ collaborated with FJJ to establish the Youth Advisory Council of Orangeburg, SC, through a grant awarded by the United Way of the Midlands. The primary goal of the Advisory Council is to create and implement innovative programs for youth.

• Friends of Juvenile Justice (FJJ) – FJJ partnered with DJJ by funding five Teen After-School Center (TASC) programs. TASC programs provide mentoring, tutoring, and supervision for DJJ and community youth in the critical after-school hours.

Ensuring Public Safety

• Gang Study Task Force – DJJ leadership, along with other state leaders hosted community forums across the state to promote gang awareness. As a result, DJJ administered a gang survey and created a gang training curriculum for staff.

• Replacement Dormitories Constructed – Two new replacement dorms were constructed on Broad River Road. They were designed to promote best practice in behavior management and juvenile/staff safety.

Providing Customer Services

- Serving Carolina Through Service – DJJ’s Community Services Division initiated a state wide restorative community service day called Serving Carolina Through Service. Over 3,600 DJJ youth and staff from every county in South Carolina and DJJ facility participated in this project.

- The South Carolina Vocational Rehabilitation Program at DJJ – The South Carolina Department of Vocational Rehabilitation partnered with DJJ to provide services that assist incarcerated youth in finding employment in their home communities upon release from DJJ facilities.
